

You can use the Standard product representation for standard kinds of products, which typically include articles and services. Other product representations, i.e. Membership, E-product and Bundle, are derived from the standard product representation. This means that they share properties with the standard product representation, but have also their representation-specific properties.

Each product has properties described in Products.