

The editor in Kentico provides standard word processor features for web content. Users work with the editor when entering content into rich text (HTML) fields in many parts of the Kentico interface, for example the editable regions of pages.

Kentico uses an implementation of the CKEditor web text editor.

This chapter describes how to configure, customize or extend the editor:

For basic information about the editor from a user's point of view, see the Using the editor chapter.
