

When you want to publish a forum on your website, you can use web parts from the Forums category on your page templates.

Publishing a forum group on the website

You can publish an entire forum group on the website using the Forum group web part. All you need to do is to select the appropriate Group name value in the web part properties. The default forum looks like this:

Forum	Threads	Posts	Last post
Site forums <small>Site forums</small> Website forums <small>This is a forum group for sample forums on the sample Corporate Site.</small> Lock	2	11	Susanne Paige (6/21/2011 8:18:39 PM)

The forum threads in the selected forum can be displayed in two ways:

- As a list of threads
 - set the Forum layout property to Flat

Website forums This is a forum group for sample forums on the sample Corporate Site. New thread Subscribe to forum Site forums > Website forums
Thread	Created by	Posts	Views	Last post
 Services feedback Lock Stick thread	administrator	5	91	Susanne Paige (6/21/2011 8:18:39)
 Products requests Lock Stick thread	administrator	6	12	Trevor Lloyd (6/21/2011 8:00:58)

- As a tree of threads and posts
 - set the Forum layout property to Tree

Website forums This is a forum group for sample forums on the sample Corporate Site. New thread Subscribe to forum Site forums > Website forums
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Website forums <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Products requests <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Apple iPad 2 More smartphones <ul style="list-style-type: none"> RE:More smartphones Services feedback <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Consulting exceeding all expectations Web development - London Office 	